

ANDREW COLQUHOUN

SENIOR DIRECTOR &

HEAD OF ASIA-PACIFIC SOVEREIGN RATINGS

Andrew Colquhoun joined Fitch Ratings as a director in the Sovereign Group in 2006. He covered a range of credits on the Emerging Europe team for over three years before transferring to Fitch's Asia-Pacific Sovereigns team, based in Hong Kong, in 2009. He is currently the Head of Asia Pacific Sovereign Ratings and is the lead analyst for a number of countries in the region.

Before joining Fitch, Andrew worked at the Bank of England for eight years in a range of roles in the Bank's monetary analysis, market operations, and financial stability areas.

Andrew has an MSc in Economics from the University of Warwick and a BA from Oxford University in Philosophy, Politics and Economics.